Americans have always lived in a free society, with their individual freedom respected and upheld. Individuals are free to make decisions for themselves, but they are also restricted by the rules of their accepted institutions; the church, the family, the school. In fact, people tend to seek comfort and security from these institutions. Although individuals are so bound, one to another, their desire for material objects and status creates a vicious competition. Offsetting this, however, is the need to conform with the common practices of others.

Man feels the pressure of his society more than ever before. Technological progress has created a threat to individual freedom. Modern technology requires more intellect in creation and less in operation than was necessary ever before in the history of man. This has forced a burden on the school to prepare each student for this type of life. The huge increase in population has made each individual a little less significant in the world. Each person is only one in billions, and thus feels he has lost much of his identity. Man also lives in a fear unique to this century, the threat of nuclear annihilation. There may be a moratorium on the bomb, but not on nuclear tension. Couple this with the awareness that space-ship earth is slowly losing control of its ecology and you wonder — can he survive?

Man is an extraordinary creature, endowed with particular facilities for reasoning. Yet man loses much of his uniqueness by simply being an element of society. Today's modern era is the most difficult man has yet faced. Will he survive?

Interview:
Coach Darvin Pegelow
Cross-Country
by David Harrison

Have you ever wondered what it's like to run in competition? Just run. Not to try to put something in a goal, or squeeze home the winning run. No cheerleaders, few spectators. Just you, your opponent, and the rest of the guys, running.

If you had ever run cross-country, you wouldn't have to wonder. The sport is as old as ancient Greece, and its elements are fundamental. Dedication. Personal punishment. Self discipline. Personal achievement.

Cross-country is a very demanding sport, calling for great individual strenght. Normal practice sessions range from eight to twelve miles per night. During the first three weeks of school, over three workouts, fourteen to twenty miles are covered per day. Obviously, a great deal of training is necessary to the good runner. It begins in the spring with track. Through July, the runner gradually builds up his speed and endurance, and his distances get longer. In August, he may participate in the summer track program at RIT and continue to work out on his own. When school opens, the runner must be able to cover six to eight miles the first night, because the first meet is only a week away.

The art of cross-country is far more complex than it seems at first glance. In practice, great emphasis is placed on seemingly small points. Hill running is stressed because of the special barriers to stride and breathing that the hill presents. Change of scenery is an important factor, because it is more desirable to see different settings while running, thus avoiding boredom. For these reasons, Cobbs Hill (which, along with RIT, is the MCC home course) is preferred, because it offers both factors. In addition, weather plays a crucial role in cross-country. Ideal conditions would be had on a day which was not too wet, cool, clear, sunny and not too much wind.

The good cross-country runner needs little coaching, really. He knows what he is there for. He does not dog it in practice, when he is out of the coach's sight. It is this type of runner that has given MCC a record of 10-1 this season. The team was blessed with at least five such athletes: Tom Doehler, a sophomore, Freshmen Jim Ferris, Warren Click, and Dick Jeffries, and Sophomore Gary Boyce. These men occupied the crucial first five positions that count towards the lowest score, which is needed to win a cross-country meet. They run a four mile course designed to test endurance and speed.

They played their most important role in the highlight meet of the season, at Mohawk Community. Having been beaten previously by Mohawk, the Tribunes were out for two goals; to show that they had the better team, and to stay in competition for a Regional berth with Cobleskill. MCC achieved both goals, although they consequently lost to Cobleskill in that competition. They ended their season second in the conference and third in the region, a tribute to the Tribune harriers and their coach, Darvin Pegelow.

Coach Pegelow summed up the cross-country man's attitude with this often-used phrase:
"Find a big hill, run it twice."

Interview:
Joseph Mancarella — Soccer
by David Harrison

Soccer. It's America's fastest growing sport. The Rochester Lancers have recently been incorporated into the nation's only big league of soccer, the NASL. But, even with this notoriety, the MCC student can still find a great brand of soccer right in his own back yard.

Coach Mancarella finds the word "surprising" appropriate in describing his team's successful season. After losing a tough season opener to Broome Tech, the coach's outlook was not extremely optimistic. But the team came back to compile 11 wins against 2 losses in the regular season plus a thrilling 5-3 victory over Broome in a rare Sub-Regional playoff game. In Region 3 tournament action, the Tribunes advanced to the finals before being eliminated by Canton.

Two outstanding factors in the soccer success were the offensive play of Tom Jamieson and the entire defense. Jamieson consistantly put the ball into the net at crucial moments, and the stingy defense yielded only 21 goals in 16 games, or 1.3 goals allowed per game. This total included 6 shut-outs, including a 1-0 win in the Regional semi-final game. In contrast, MCC scorers exploded for 64 goals, or an average of 4.0 goals per game. These figures include a 10-1 shellacking of Erie.

The Tribune pitchmen faced two crucial tests this season, and fared well in both, although they came out on the short end of the first. The opponent was Morrisville, and the conference championship was at stake. It went into overtime, with the win going Morrisville, 4-3. MCC did better in its second decisive match, the first Sub-Regional ever to be played in the area, with Broome Tech. Facing their opening-game adversaries for the second time, the Tribunes were more than a match for the Binghamton men, winning 5-3.

School support was generally good for the pitchmen, and the coach extends special thanks to the cheerleaders for their enthusiastic support.

Mancarella is optimistic about next season. He sees a great many good high school players in the area, and he hopes to have a few on his team next season. Perhaps he'll get another like Ralph Wallace, a football player in high school who starred in his first year of soccer. One very definite happening next season will be the Inter-Regional Tournament, to be held in Ohio on September 26. Teams from St. Louis and Ohio will participate and due to our previous outstanding season, the Tribunes will represent the Northeast. This prestigious invitational climaxes a great season, and will open what may prove to be an even greater one.

Basketball

INTERVIEW:
Coach Bruce Shapiro, Basketball
by David Harrison

If you happen to see Murph Shapiro in the corridor this year, smile. You're looking at a winner.

Coach Shapiro this season took over the very successful reins of Athletic Director George Monagan. He molded a solid Tribune team, coming off the season with a fine record.

How? Shapiro stresses the word "unity" in any discussion of his team. Each man contributes and picks up another on an off-night. No starter averaged more than 15 points, but all five averaged in double figures. Solid team play is the key.

Many factors make up a balanced, unified team. One is the unselfishness of its individuals, who believe in winning. The only points they count are the totals for the team. Another is the crowd. This year, the crowds at MCC home games soared, with sellouts at the Erie Tech, Niagara Community, and Broome Tech clashes. This, along with the players' familiarity with their own surroundings, provides the "home-court advantage," good for 6-8 points per game.

At times this season, the Tribunes had to play catch-up basketball, and this, too, has contributed to the team feeling. Injuries, unfortunately, also have a part. Key injuries to Jim McKeegan and Gene Williams brought outstanding performances from John Valenti and Tom Jamieson from the bench.

If one man were to be chosen as the team's outstanding performer, it would be Ed "Dino" Page, the second team All-Regional choice at center. The big man averaged 16 points and 15 rebounds per game in his first college season, and was unanimously named Most Valuable Player by his team mates. A man whose name seldom appeared at the head of the scorers was the team's "quarterback," guard Cliff Andres. All basketball teams need a player who holds them together in a cohesive unit. Andres performed admirably in this function, using his considerable ballhandling skill and defensive ability to defeat presses and to start his offense with set plays. So, it takes all kinds of abilities to mold a winner. MCC proved it had succeeded this season.

Undoubtedly, the highpoint of the year was the finale with Broome Tech at home. Faced with a team that has become nearly a legend in this region, Shapiro's squad upset the visitors. John Valenti led the scorers with 26 points, and Ed Page effectively cleared the boards. Shapiro later described it as "definitely my greatest victory as a coach."

"Basketball at Monroe is going to be big for a long time to come," says Coach Shapiro. "It's going to be a showcase where a lot of college scouts will be looking for ball players . . . they'll be coming to Monroe to look for 'em. And this is what it's all about. If a kid can come here for two years, get a good education, and then get a scholarship to a four year school for two more years for playing basketball, I feel that, with today's high cost of education, this is really something for a kid."

We couldn't agree more.

Wrestling

INTERVIEW:
Roscoe Hastings — Wrestling
by David Harrison

Wrestling is one of the newer sports at MCC. Only in its second season, it was beset by a series of withdrawals by key personnel. Yet the team still posted an 8-6 record, an improvement over its first year. Largely, the credit goes to Coach Hastings and his rather motley group of regulars who simply refused to quit.

The team's greatest strength was its aggressiveness, reflected in its numerous takedowns. A takedown is the wrestler's opening move, accomplished from a neutral position. If the wrestler performs it aggressively and attacks his opponent, the chances are that that aggressive attitude will continue throughout the match. The Tribunes scored 40 more takedowns then their opponents by the end of the season. At one point, when the team was still generally complete, the matmen boasted of a takedown ratio of 3-1 over their adversaries. This aggressiveness was reflected in Gary St. James, the team's outstanding wrestler and its leader in takedowns. Most improved of the Tribune grapplers were Bob Hilldebrand and co-captain Dave Young. These three, along with co-captain Doug Williams, succeeding in holding the ever-changing personnel together.

Training for the wrestlers is a year-round thing, beginning with weight-training in February. This training continues through September, when it becomes more intensified. Beginning in late October or early November, practice begins. For almost the entire first month, fundamentals are stressed. This is needed because, although all the men have wrestled before, their backgrounds are extremely varied. When the coach sees that all is progressing smoothly together, the team proceeds to the finer points.

Although wrestling itself is done by individuals, Hastings has stressed the importance of the team. Even if a wrestler has pinned his opponent, he should, and does, feel unhappy if the team loses. This is important, because it can be easy to lose sight of what you are out there for — to contribute to your team. Hastings molds team spirit by planning all activities to be carried out as a team. In practice, the men like and respect each other. "When you have people helping each other," says Hastings, "then you have a team."

The matmen's outstanding meet of the year was a 34-6 romp over perennial state power Oswego State. Once they got rolling, they couldn't be stopped, and the meet climaxed a win streak of four meets.

Next season's team should improve, with St. James, Hilldebrand and Young among those who will return. The coach hopes to see more men stay with the team throughout the season. And fans, there is very little that is as exciting to watch. Support your team

Baseball

INTERVIEW:
David Chamberlain — Baseball
by David Harrison

There's the story in baseball about the clubhouse meeting held by the Baltimore Orioles before the second game of the '66 World Series. Each player on the Los Angeles Dodgers had been analyzed for his power and weaknesses. So thorough was the meeting that it even got to the Dodgers' starting pitcher, Sandy Koufax. Although he was one of the greatest hitters baseball has ever seen. One Oriole at the meeting asked, '
This Koufax, how do we play him?" "Easy," came the reply, "pitch him fastballs and bunch him around the mound."

Coach Dave Chamberlain was fortunate in avoiding this kind of problem. His Tribunes scored a total of 185 runs in 27 games this past season, for an average of 6.9 runs per game. Meanwhile, their opponents managed 74 runs in those 27 games, or 2.8 runs per game. MCC pitching amazed six shutouts and ten games where their adversaries scored only one run. Opponents may list only one shutout and one 1-run game against Tribune hitters.

Therefore, scoring is the key to the 23-4 season the team enjoyed. This is the single most-improved aspect of MCC baseball. Although it has to be stressed that it was a team effort, three men are largely responsible for the hitting asault: Shortstop Ralph Clapp, Third Baseman Jim Carley, and First Baseman — Catcher Mike Nally. They supplied the punch for pitching aces Steve Nichols and Dennis Fitzpatrick. They were joined by the rest of the starting nine: Cathcer Bob Armstrong, Bob Herzog at second, and outfielders Jeff Rice, Dave Thomas, Al Emerson, and John Blackwell. It was a team marked by hustle and desire. They opened strong with a 1-0 victory against rival and Regional champion Hudson Valley, and closed even stronger with a pair of wins over Delhi, 6-1 and 8-1. This was the Tribunes first sweep of a Delhi team ever, and saw Chamberlain field a team of Seniors in the first with Nichols and Freshmen in the second with Fitzpatrick.

The Regional tournament was the lone disappointment for MCC this past season. On home grounds, the team beat Niagara in a marathon, 13-inning affair lasting two days. Later the second day, a cold, tired Steve Nichols faced Hudson Valley in the finals and was beaten 9-3. However, the Tribunes came back the following week to sweep Delhi and end on a winning note.

MCC students have a team to be proud of. There's plenty of action, and the players are all people you know. Come out this season and support a winner. You'll see the results.

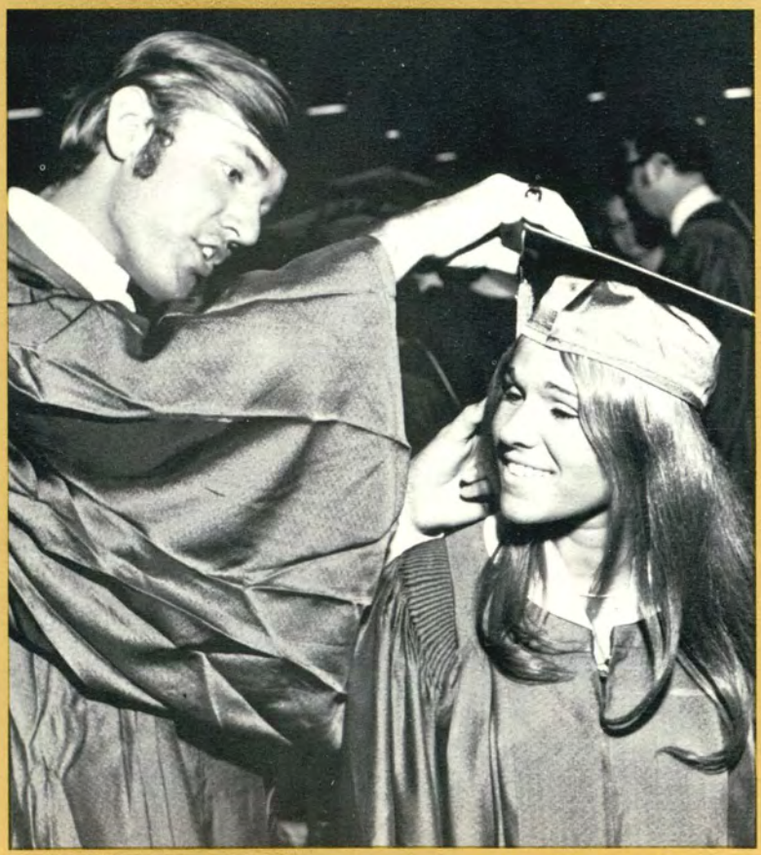
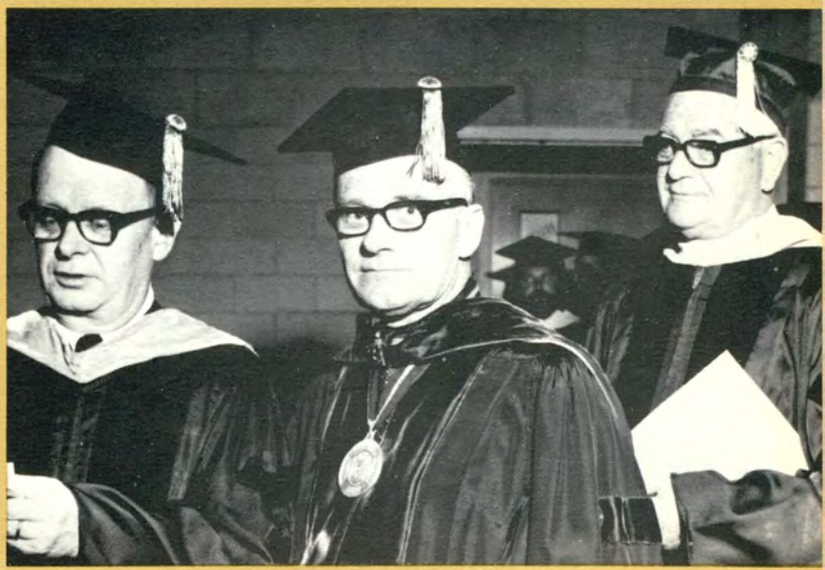
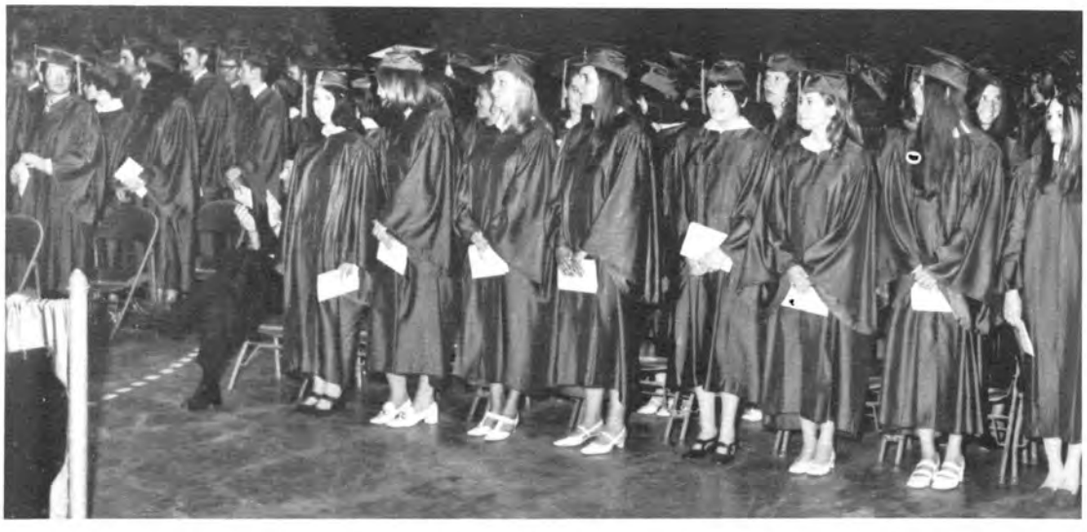
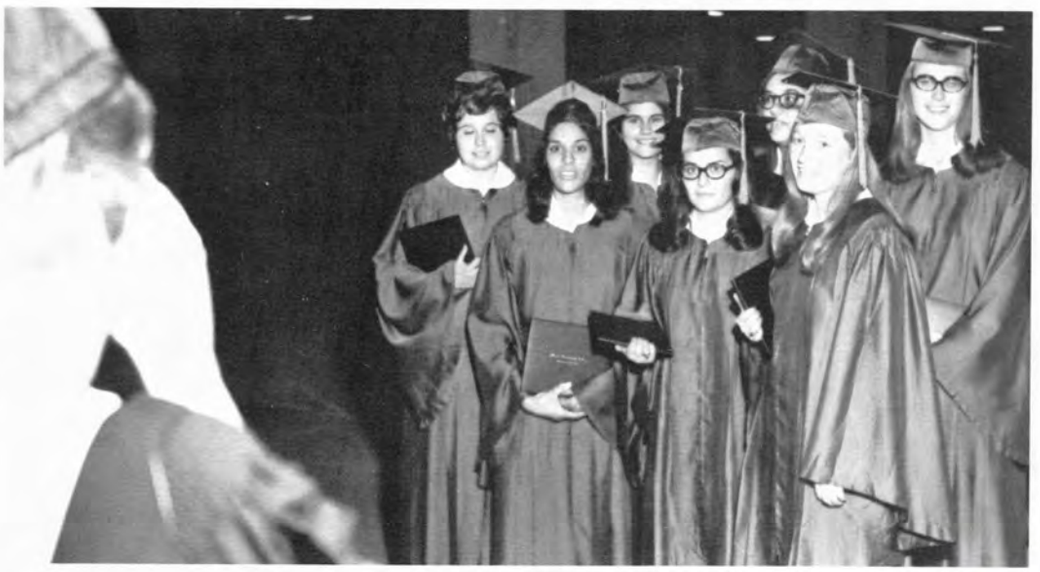
OPTICAL TECH









↑ me

Every person is born an island,
more of an island then our planet in the midst of space,
an island in his own family
in his own mysterious body,
in his intimate thoughts.

But as long as I remain that island,
I am not truly myself.
I can only become myself by knowing the other man.
I must throw out my bridge and hope in the other
that he too will build his bridge toward me.

No one bridge in the world is long enough to reach the next island.
